Hunt Gambler in Plot to Murder Indiana Prosecutor

Plot Fails When Officer Hired To Be Gunman

One Alreday Held on Charge of Conspiring To Kill John Tinker

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Police today sought a Chicago gambler as the brains behind a plot to assassinate Marion County Prosecutor John G. Tinker.

The plot failed Thursday night because a policeman had been hired as the triggerman.

Richard Gordon Marks, a 24-year-old tobacco company deliveryman, was already held on charges of conspiring to kill Tinker. Marks told police that a Chicago gambler hired him for $2,000 to "get" Tinker.

Detestives Have Warrant

Two detectives were sent to Chicago with a warrant for the gambler, who was not identified. It was indicated he was connected with a racing information service which Tinker is fighting.

Tinker's assassination had been scheduled for Thursday night, Marks said.

He had previously hired an unidentified man to do the killing. He said in a statement, and they had staked out Tinker's isolated suburban home for several nights from a haystack. Then the man backed out.

Tips Off Authorities

Marks turned to a cab driver in his search for a gunman. The cab driver, a police informant, tipped off authorities. Patrolman Richard Parker was assigned to take the role of an "out of town hoodlum" who needed money to get to California.

Marks hired Parker as the triggerman Wednesday night. They planned to park in Tinker's driveway, sound the horn, and shoot him down as he opened the door. As Parker "agreed" to the killing, Marks handed him a .22 caliber repeating rifle and a box of shells. Thursday afternoon, Marks signed a promissory note for $2,000 to be paid Parker "when the job is done."

Uses Tape Recorder

As they talked, Parker flipped on a tape recorder hidden in his car. Then he turned on his headlights, a pre-arranged signal for officers to close in. Parker turned on Marks with his service revolver in his hand.

Marks, once convicted for auto theft, later told police that the Chicago gambler hired him to kill Tinker because the prosecutor once cost him $50,000 "by removing those telephones in Indianapolis."

Tinker recently ordered the removal of telephones from a horse-race news service operated by Ralph Hitch. He said he was sure the attempt to kill him stemmed from his continuing drive to stamp out a racing information service.

There's Entertainment to the South of Us, To the North of Us; We'll Have Some Soon

Entertainments held annually in neighboring towns—the Fall Festival at Eldorado and Soldiers and Sailors Reunion at Stonefort—are in full swing, and will continue through Saturday evening.

The Fall Festival got underway in Eldorado Tuesday night with a horse show, attracting more than 100 entries, held on the Eldorado softball field.

This evening a feature being offered for the first time at the festival, a beauty contest to select "Miss Fall Festival," will be staged. It is expected to be one of the most popular events of the entire affair.

The Stonefort Reunion, with baseball games throughout the day and programs of speakings and varied entertainment at night, started Wednesday evening, with a large crowd on hand.

Tonight's program includes Diana and Ray Alberta presenting ballroom and novelty dancing and other entertainment.

The Stonefort affair is being staged at the reunion grounds on Route 45, just east of Stonefort.

At Eldorado the uptown streets have been roped off for the festivities. Stages have been erected for the programs and concessions and rides line the streets.

Next big entertainment in Harrisburg will be the Labor Day celebration at the fairgrounds day and night a week from Monday.

Vienna Doctors, Dentists Fight Trade Unionists

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Ten persons were reported injured today when striking Viennese doctors and dentists clashed with trade unionists supporting a plan for nationalized medicine.

Police said there were a number of black eyes, painful bruises and scratches as a result of swinging fists and well-placed kicks, but no serious injuries.

The 15,000 doctors and dentists of Vienna called a 48-hour strike Thursday in protest of a nationalized medical plan. There was no medical treatment available anywhere in Vienna today, except for emergency patients and serious hospital cases.

All Vienna hospitals were under heavy police guard to prevent violence between the striking doctors and trade unionists who support the nationalization plan.

Clad in their white, professional coats, the doctors exchanged kicks and blows with unionists who shouted demands that the medical end their work stoppage.

One of Austria's most prominent physicians, Dr. Hans Fleischhacker, resigned as chief of Vienna's Hanusch Hospital following a demonstration there Thursday, in which striking doctors stormed up the stairs in an attempt to persuade non-striking colleagues to join their walkout.

On Vienna's largest shopping street, a truckload of unionists pulled up at a public dental station and grabbed placards and leaflets from striking dentists, parading outside.

Several passing shoppers became involved in the scuffle before police arrived and broke up the demonstration.

The strike is scheduled to end at midnight tonight.

Balance the Budget? Maybe; Lower Income Tax Likely As Red-Ink Spending Curbed

By ROBERT F. MORISON

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—Key members of Congress today regarded a new reduction in government red-ink spending as fresh evidence that everybody's income taxes are likely to be cut in the 1956 election year.

The Eisenhower administration plans were outlined Thursday by Secretary of Treasury George W. Humphrey and Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes.

They made public a revised federal budget. It showed that booming prosperity had boosted tax revenues beyond expectations. It also showed the administration has now reduced from $2,400,000,000 to $1,700,000,000 its official forecast of red-ink spending in the current fiscal year.

Moreover, Humphrey and Hughes said, "barring some unforeseen development, we think we can" eliminate the deficit entirely and "balance the budget" before the fiscal year ends June 30, 1956.

Some Democratic tax experts believed the report was a tip-off that the administration, which blocked a Democratic tax-cutting drive earlier this year, is now planning one of its own in advance of the 1956 elections. They called it "politics."

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) foresaw the possibility of a partisan fight over the issue of "who" gets tax relief.

"When they (the Republicans) go to cutting taxes, we are going to look at whom they are proposing to cut them for," Rayburn said in a telephoned interview from his Bonham, Tex., home.

Rayburn would not elaborate, but he has charged that the 1954 tax cut enacted by the Republican Congress favored the wealthy and discriminated against the "little folks."

He said he believes the Department of Commerce would "look with favor" upon applications by private traders for licenses to sell perishable surplus commodities. He said there is nothing to stop a private trader from buying or selling to Iron Curtain countries.

Benson also told a news conference the administration probably will allow private traders to sell perishable commodities to Russia and other Iron Curtain countries.

Weird Bands of Men Prowl Streets Of Davenport, Iowa

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP)—A weird band of young men wearing white masks and with crosses taped on their bare chests prowled city streets Thursday night in defiance of a police "shoot on sight" warning.

Twelve members of the strange band drove up to a home where a party was in progress. They honked their horns and then, in parade fashion, circled the block three times in their three cars.

The procession was witnessed by two baby sitters next door. They said one of the group jumped from his car and made a mark on the house door before the caravan drove off.

On two previous nights this week, about 10 members of the "white mask" band surrounded groups of young women or girls and danced around them in silence. The women were not molested.

Hurricane Probably to Get Stronger; Less than 1,000 Miles from U. S.

MIAMI (AP)—Hurricane Edith, her winds up to 80 miles an hour, churned the Atlantic today less than 1,000 miles from the twice-battered eastern U. S. seaboard.

There was an ominous signal today that the hurricane probably would get stronger within a matter of hours. There was a decrease in central pressure in the storm's eye, an indication to weathermen that a buildup in intensity could be expected soon.

Meanwhile, still another tropical disturbance was being investigated in the Gulf of Mexico.

Mrs. Quigley Throws Milk in Picket's Face

She's the Woman Who Turned Husband Out Because He Struck

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Esther Quigley, 35, who turned her husband out because he went on strike against a steel company, tangled with a union official on a picket line today and was hauled off to a police station.

She threw a bottle of milk on her opponent.

Capt. George Barnes of the Chicago police labor detail, said he planned to file charges of disorderly conduct against her and her opponent, Nick Prete, president of Local 1214 of the CIO United Auto Workers.

Local 1214 is on strike against the Harrison Sheet Steel Co. Her husband, Andrew, is a shop steward of the union, and the couple began to scrap when he ignored her pleas to refrain from extra union activity and to try to avoid a strike. He has not commented.

When Mrs. Quigley went to the picket line, she had said it was merely to let the pickets read the letters she had received supporting her stand.

But after tart exchanges with the pickets, and a verbal battle with Mrs. Lanny Brewer, who said she was recording secretary of CIO-IAW Local 290, and who used a loud-speaker system, Mrs. Quigley met Prete.

He walked up to her with a bottle of milk and said, "You wanted to feed the babies, didn't you? Here's some."

Mrs. Quigley turned, grabbed the milk and pitched it in his face.

Bow to French In Colorful Ceremonies

Led by Chieftains, Nomads Ride Down Out of Mountains

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP)—Rebellious Berber tribesmen came down from their mountain hideouts today in "sizeable numbers" to lay down their arms after one of the worst uprisings against French rule in North Africa in 20 years.

The first large-scale surrenders came six days after the start of the uprising which caused an estimated total of 1,800 deaths in Morocco and Algeria.

The fierce tribesmen bowed to French power after being encircled in the middle Atlas Mountains of central Morocco, 75 miles south-east of Casablanca, by a powerful punitive expedition of tank-led French troops.

Wins Confidence of Many

News of the surrenders reached here as French President General Gilbert Grandval prepared to leave for France on what probably will be his last official trip. But Grandval, in his brief tenure, has won the confidence of many sections of Moroccan opinion and it was feared his departure may signal new disturbances.

French officials warned they will not relax their iron grip on the Smaala tribesmen until assured of the allegiance of all the 4,000 armed men and 25,000 population of the war-like tribe.

Led by their chieftains, the nomads rode down the arid hills in small groups to pledge their allegiance and to ask French pardon.

Mid-Afternoon Ceremonies

The colorful ceremonies began at marked noon. As each group laid down its old-fashioned rifles and long daggers, their submission was formally sealed by the traditional ritual of the sacrifice of a young bull.

The Smaala tribesmen participated in the massacre at Oued Zem, scene of the worst violence in last weekend's bloody uprising.

Seventy Europeans were brutally tortured and murdered and their homes were sacked and burned in a dawn raid on Oued Zem by Berber horsemen from the hills above the town and rioters from the city's native quarter.

AIX-LES-BAINS, France (AP)—Moroccan Nationalists whose demands for more freedom touched off a bloody rebellion were reported throwing their support behind Premier Edgar Faure today in his efforts to bring peace to the protectorate.

Informed sources said Faure had worked out an eye-for-an-eye compromise solution calling for a reform government that would have Nationalist participation but would not inflame French settlers who oppose any "negotiations" with the Nationalists.

Government Now Testing All Salk Polio Vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government is now testing all Salk polio vaccine to make doubly sure the shots never trigger another polio outbreak like the Cutter incident.

Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele believes rigid testing by manufacturers and government insures that the vaccine being released to the public is as safe as science now can make it.

He said the flow of vaccine has been irregular up to now. But he predicted that it will increase substantially this fall when the mass inoculation of the nation's children is expected to get into full swing again.

The POW Code

BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

Let us hope that the Defense Department does not now proceed to make so much of its new prisoner-of-war code of conduct that fighting men are encouraged to surrender in the future. Naturally the government's goal is exactly the reverse.

Continued resistance clearly is vital to the entire fighting effort. Easy surrender could damage our cause immeasurably.

Nevertheless, assuming that some men inevitably would yield, the government wants them equipped with standards of conduct that will stiffen their resolve under the pressures they would surely face.

In this regard, the Korean war was a shocking, eye-opening lesson. Communist barbarism out-dated old ideas of prisoner conduct.

Men were pressed to sign false statements of guilt of alleged germ warfare, to "rat" on their prisoner comrades in many ways, to accept and then preach communism with the aim of weakening the UN's fighting resolve.

America may be proud that in the face of these almost unprecedented devices so few of its fighting men yielded. More than a third who were taken prisoner died in captivity. Of the 428 surviving prisoners out of an original 7190, only 192 were found chargeable with serious offenses against either their comrades or the United States government.

Still, the damage was sufficient and the peril in the future great enough to warrant a new code of conduct to meet the situation.

The code calls on the fighting man to refuse surrender so long as he has the means to resist, but if captured to continue resistance by whatever means possible, and to attempt escape. It urges him to keep faith with his fellow prisoners, give no information harmful to his comrades, and make no statements disloyal to his country.

At the same time, the report issued by the advisory group which drafted the code sees a crucial link between the soldier and the civilian life from which he springs.

What the group really is saying is that the fighting man's resolve to resist, whether on the field or in the prison camp, is made at home—in the family setting, the school, the church and the community.

It notes that many U. S. soldiers who were captured cared little for politics, and had slight command of U. S. history and government. Often their Red interrogators knew more than they did. Thus they offered mental vacuums into which the Reds poured their propaganda.

A military code may tell Americans what is expected of them. But only an alert home, school and church can give them the moral force to want to resist, and the knowledge that will tell them how and why to resist.

One more point. Such a code should not be so rigidly applied as a measure of conduct that it leaves little room for human compassion. Sympathy for the tortured is easy to muster. But we must not forget that men are equal in their capacity to resist pressures of many sorts. We must view every case as individual, with one eye on the stability of our fighting forces and the other on the natural frailty of men.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: FPC Commissioner Digby Votes For His Old Law Client Despite Conflict Of Interest; Power Commission Ignores Licensing Of Federal Dam Sites; Alcoa Gets Dam Sites For 100 Years Despite 50-Year Limit.

(Editor's Note — The resignation of Harold Talbott as secretary of the Air Force because of "conflict of interest" has intensified interest in Washington regarding the lobbies and others who may serve too masters. Today Drew Pearson contributes another of his columns on this subject.)

WASHINGTON—When it comes to decisions that affect the economics of the American people perhaps the most vital quasi-judicial agency in government is the Federal Power Commission.

Its five men decide who shall denature as power sites, such as Hells Canyon; what areas shall get oil and gas pipelines and how much the public shall pay for them—all decisions that run into billions of dollars. Yet some of these commissioners of late have been swayed and dined by lobbyists, have taken a trip across the continent at the expense of a gas-oil lobby, and one commissioner has been guilty of a "conflict of interest" just as definite as that of ex-Air Force Secretary Talbott.

He is Seaborn Dwyer, a Louisiana Democrat appointed by Eisenhower with the enthusiastic approval of the gas-oil industry. Before he came to Washington, Dwyer represented the Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp. Yet as a Federal Power Commissioner, Dwyer on March 15, 1955, failed to disqualify himself when the case of his former client came before the commission.

The vote was four to one against Transcontinental, Digby being the only man to vote for the company. Transcontinental was asked for FPC approval of a rate increase based on a new financing scheme prepared with the help of Digby's law firm. The commission voted to disallow $5,371,000 which Transcontinental had included in its new rate base, and Digby did not step aside, as is customary where a former law client is concerned.

Asked by this writer why he had followed this unusual policy, Commissioner Digby replied: "If I didn't feel capable of voting as my best judgment dictates, I wouldn't be here."

100 YEAR LEASES

Very quietly, the new utility-dominated power commission has proceeded to hand out some of the most shocking give-aways of the last three years. They include hydroelectric dam sites to private utilities for as much as 100 years—in direct defiance of federal law which limits leases to 50 years.

The companies getting these lush bonanzas are:

1. James Black's Pacific Gas and Electric. Black has been a guest at Eisenhower's now-confidential stag dinners, and is a member of Secretary Weeks' Business Advisory Council, whose Operations Weeks will not reveal to the House Judiciary Committee.

2. Aluminum Corporation of America, controlled by the Mellon family, whose first Boston corporation had a vice president inside the Budget Bureau when Dixon-Yates was being hatched.

3. The Montana Power company, formed as part of the giant Electric Bond and Share Holding Co., which also helped to spawn Dixon-Yates.

To understand the 100-year dam site give-aways recently put across by the new Ike-members of the power commission, it's necessary to go back to 1920, during Woodrow Wilson's administration, when public disgust at the profiteering of private utilities so enraged the public that Congress passed the Federal Water Power Act, based on the theory that the nation's water resources belonged to all the citizens. Public development of these resources, Congress decreed, should take preference over exploitation by private companies.

The federal government permitted the issue dam-site licenses to private utilities—but only for 50 years. At the end of that time, Congress decreed, a firm's investment would be amortized, and with the expiration of the license, Congress would get a fresh chance to consider the desirability of federal development.

Or if Congress showed no interest, states and municipalities would get second priority, with the private utilities eligible for a new 50-year license only if states and municipalities were not interested.

A decade later, when the power companies planted friends in the Federal Power Commission, it became a national scandal and was one of the issues which led to Herbert Hoover's defeat.

FPC FLOUTS LAW

Today, the new Ike-men on the power commission have completely flouted this 50-year law. Acting as if it weren't on the statute books, they have guaranteed power companies, untrammelled use of power sites for periods of greater than 50 years, in some cases up to a century.

In one case, when the FPC issued licenses to Montana Power to expire in 1979, Montana Power refused to accept the commission's decision; delayed, jockeyed and pressured, until it looks as if it would get a license to use federal water sites until the year 2005.

This thwarting of the 50-year limit has been accomplished by a very real device. The big utilities have devised package programs, by which they lump several power sites together under a single license. In this package are usually bunched one new project with several old projects which have little time left of their 50 years. Then a full new 50-year license is asked for the entire package on the argument that one new dam site is included in the package.

More details on this get-away by the power companies and the give-aways by the Federal Power Commission will follow shortly.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Allie Edwards Jr., who passed away 3 years ago today, on Aug. 26th, 1952.
In memory we see him now, yet know he is away.
'Tis lonely here without him, but we'll meet again someday.
We listen for the voice now stilled, the steps we hear no more.
His gentle words and loving smile, our memory keeps in store.
When we shall lay our burdens down and toiling here is o'er, We'll go to meet our loved one, on Heaven's golden shore.
Sadly missed by wife and children.
Mrs. Dorothy Edwards,

NOT JUST MONKEYING AROUND—Taking seriously the current talk about putting monkeys to work are Bill McGregor and his pet monkey, Jenney. McGregor, a Malden, Mass., gas station owner, seems to agree with theorists that simians can replace men on certain jobs. Jenney, cooperating with the experiment, seems to be asking the customer, "Fill 'er up?"

Death Blow Called A Playful Poke

WHEATON, Ill. (UP)—Witnesses told sheriff's police that the blow which apparently caused the death of industrialist Leo A. Perry was a playful poke on the jaw during a discussion with a longtime friend.
The blow was struck by Charles Fisher, 59, a sales engineer, who is held without bond in the Du Page County jail on a murder charge.
The incident occurred Wednesday night in the bar of the St. Andrews Country Club during a stag party.
Perry, 57, board chairman of the Joliet Wrought Washer Co., was taken to Delnor Hospital in St. Charles.
Attendants there said he died of a fractured skull, apparently suffered when his head hit the floor of the barroom.

Mother of 4 Wheel Chair Patients Dies

CHICAGO (UP)—The four sons of Mrs. Nora Walsh went to see her buried today. All four were in wheel chairs.
Mrs. Walsh had cared for her grown sons since childhood until her death Tuesday. All four—aged 17 to 27—are afflicted with muscular dystrophy.
From now on, their father, William, a brother and a sister must look after them.

Continue to Raze Old Property in Harrisburg

The program of razing old, rundown property, initiated by the present Harrisburg city council, under the direction of Fire Chief L. G. Martin, continues.
At present the property at 520 West Elm street is being torn away, Chief Martin reports. The work is being done by Marvin Owens.
This is the fourth building to be razed in the last few months.

Woman Had Reason To Keep on Her Feet

CHICAGO (UP)—A woman customer refused a gunman's order to all persons in a loan company to get down on the floor.
"I won't do it. I have arthritis," she said.
She remained standing while the thief fled with $450 Thursday.

Springfield Gave Couple Nothing But Asthma

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP)—A one-time resident of Springfield has indignantly refused to pay a local tax bill.
The woman, now living in Chicago, returned the tax bill to Sangamon County Treasurer Earl O. Ramey with an explanation: "We got nothing out of Springfield except asthma."
She said she and her husband did not work in Springfield, but lived there and "spent all our money there."
The tax collector let the matter drop.

That's All The Old Cars

Looks like we are near the end of the "old car" list.

The Register listed more than 100 car names recently, and asked for names of those omitted. We are getting a few names, but now most of the suggestions were in the original list—just overlooked.

Fred Hoehn came up with three we didn't list originally — Interstate, E-M-F, and Rollins.

Guess we'll now get back to the present day makes—new and used ones advertised in The Daily Register.

State Fair Gives Politics Big Chance to Start Buzzing

By DON E. CHAMBERLAIN
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Political sparring marked the 103rd year of the Illinois state fair.

Gov. William G. Stratton took top honors with a call for the GOP renomination of President Eisenhower by acclamation. State Auditor Orville E. Hodge, Granite City, tossed his hat in the ring for re-election and Democrats gave impetus to a U. S. senatorial boom for State Rep. Paul Powell, Vienna.

Stratton's call for the renomination of President Eisenhower at the San Francisco Republican National Convention in 1956 was well received.

The Governor said "Eisenhower ought to be drafted by acclamation to be our candidate next year." It overshadowed Hodge's announcement that he is a candidate for a second term as auditor. Stratton's remarks were spontaneous. Hodge's were from a prepared speech in which he raised Stratton as having an "unexcelled understanding into the needs of this great state of ours."

The Hodge announcement had some significance because he is the first of the state officers to make known his intentions and also because it probably will lessen pressure on the Stratton forces who are well-acquainted with Hodge's ambitions to some day run for governor. Other state officers are not expected to announce for some weeks.

A boom launched for Powell in the recent General Assembly was endorsed by an impromptu meeting of legislators and county leaders from several senatorial districts.

Powell himself had no comment but evinced interest when newsmen talked to him about it. A rumor circulated after the Democrats celebrated their day at the fair by staying away (they said "this is not an election year") and by attending a reception at Democrat state committee headquarters instead was that Herbert Paschen, Chicago, a possibility for governor, might be up with forces behind Powell.

State Treasurer Warren Wright, Park Ridge, hasn't said yet what he's going to run for next year, but "definitely," he said, it will not be for State Supreme Court clerk. He told a group of followers here recently "I want it understood by the people that I have pledged my support for Mrs. Searcy (widow of the late clerk Earle Benjamin Searcy, Springfield) for that post."

"I would not supplant Mrs. Searcy nor any other woman in any laudable ambition regardless of what my own political fortunes might be," said Wright. "The year 1956 may be a critical one for the Republican party in Illinois and it can ill afford to lose the magic name of Searcy. What could be better for the Republican party than to have a brilliant woman such as Mrs. Searcy, on our ticket."

What other newspapers are saying: Elgin Courier News sees the auto driver training courses now being given in many Illinois high schools as forming an excellent approach to the problem of highway traffic safety. Joliet Herald News comments approvingly on recently-enacted Illinois legislation to expend the facilities of state mental hospitals.

Rock Island Argus endorses Stratton's recent remarks regarding the possibility of calling a special session of General Assembly to enact highway safety legislation favors passage of a law fixing speed limits on highways. Grayville Mercury Independent notes reported high rate of auto crashes in White county—suggests it might justify additional patrol service by state police.

A-3C Billy D. Raymer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Raymer of Harrisburg, who has been home on a 20 day leave, left for his base Monday at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

More Workers to Return to Jobs in Allis-Chalmers Row

MILWAUKEE — More workers were scheduled to go back to their jobs in the on again-off again strike against six Allis-Chalmers Co. plants today.

Meanwhile, labor mediator Nathan Feinsinger said he would arrive Monday to take over the bogged-down contract negotiations between company officials and the CIO United Auto Workers.

About 17,000 workers went on strike Wednesday at plants in West Allis and La Crosse, Wis.; Springfield, Ill.; Terre Haute, Ind.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; and Gadsden, Ala.

However, UAW officials accepted the company's mediation offer and told the men to go back to work.

The 9,500 employees at the parent West Allis plant returned Thursday and the La Crosse workers were scheduled to go back today. Union officials here said they were confident of a return at Pittsburgh and Gadsden.

But the Springfield and Terre Haute locals stayed out, saying they were striking on local issues.

Illinois Communities Extend Daylight Time

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — About 25 communities in Illinois have decided to extend daylight time through the last Sunday in October rather than the last Sunday in September.

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA)—Close-ups and Longshots: Don't include the name of Edna Ferber in a list of "cross-eyed" writers. The gray-haired, 68-year-old novelist never has written with one eye on Hollywood gold, she told me, despite the many movie hits based on her stories.

"You can't write for two mediums at the same time, because if you do," she smiled, "it comes out cross-eyed. Only hacks write with one eye on Hollywood. I have to write for myself. I can't write to order. If Hollywood buys a story I consider it good luck—a bonus."

Edna is sitting in for the first time on filming of one of her novels, "Giant," in which she'll share in the profits with Producer Henry Ginsberg, Director George Stevens and Warner Bros.

DISAPPOINTED IN WHAT Hollywood Has Done to Some of Her Writers

"I should say I have been disappointed," she said, "but I'd rather commit suicide than mention names." She confessed a fond remembrance, though, for "Cimarron," then told me why for 46 years she's spurned fabulous offers to sign studio writing contracts.

"I had my first movie offer when I was 22. I turned it down and I've been turning them down ever since. I saved one contract sent to me about six years ago. It's so fantastic I still look at it every now and then and gasp."

"But I couldn't sign it. I have to write to please myself."

That "beautiful hunk of man" publicity still haunts Vic Mature, who just arrived in London for a starring role with Janet Leigh in "Safari." One London newspaper headlined it:

"Baron of Beefsteak Here." You can be sure Vic's beefing.

ROCK HUDSON INSISTS he's not in the "Secretly Married" League. Printed reports that it was a hush-hush knot-tying for Rock and Phyllis Gates are, he says, "A lot of baloney—it isn't true." But it is true that Hudson isn't a happy lad over the Broadway-bound play, "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?" Sez he:

"Ross Hunter (the movie producer) and I are going to sit in the front row on opening night. This I gotta see before I sue."

Skip the talk about hard-hearted studios while Tony Curtis is around. U-I gave him a "friendly" suspension for his "Trapeze" act in Europe so he can collect all of the loot, said to be 100,000. The bosses could have lent him out for the role, paid his salary and pocketed the profits.

EAR WITNESS: Gary Cooper's interested, he told Author Whitney Bolton, in "The Silver Spade," the Conrad Hilton story. Bolton and the star have a date to discuss the idea for a movie. . . . Rossano

Brazzi, the Italian heart throb, will play the Ezio Pinza role in the film version of "South Pacific." . . . This is fame note for glamor gal Anita Eekberg. A Sunset Strip hamburger counter is serving "Eckbergers."

Marilyn Monroe's presence at the Bement, Ill., Centennial, as reported from the east, to "commune with Lincoln and the arts" revealed that she "sleeps with a picture of Lincoln above her bed, both in her Manhattan apartment and in Hollywood."

I doubt it, but if it is true maybe a psychiatrist can explain it. NOT IN THE SCRIPT: Jaye P. Morgan, the eastern TV warbler, told her agent she'd like a Hollywood television show. "I don't even care if it's my own show," she said. "I'll even work as an electrician just so I can live in Hollywood."

Art dept.: Mrs. Samuel Goldwyn plunked down $65,000 for a Degas painting of a ballet dancer.

THE WITNET: Yma Sumac is best known for her "Song of the Incas" but Harry Cimring thinks she'd be a wow teaming up with Jimmy Durante for "Inca, Dinka, Do."

Who Rides With Wyatt
by Will Henry

THE STORY: Wyatt Earp saved the life of Johnny Ringo in San Angelo, Tex., and now Johnny is teaming up with the bad boys against Wyatt in Tombstone, Ariz. When Wyatt tucks up a notice that guns cannot be worn in Tombstone, Johnny and other gun-toughs tear one down and read it in the Can Can Chop House.

XI

Stilwell laughed. So did Claiborne and Spence. After a second Johnny Ringo, wanting to be counted one of the boys, reckoned it was pretty funny, too, and joined in on the guffaw.

"Well," said Frank Stilwell, wadding up Wyatt's notice and chucking it over his shoulder, "so much for Mr. Wyatt Earp and his early morning billy-doos. Here's to a dead sheriff..."

He had started his glass up, when they all noticed Behan looking past them.

Stilwell put his glass down slow and careful. Spence and Claiborne played theirs the same way. Johnny still had his in mid-air.

"Get up," said Wyatt. "Back off and turn around slow. You stay where you are, Mr. Behan."

He knew the Pima politician was not a gunman. He carried one and that was all. The other three were professionals. You could smell that a mile off. And there was no need guessing about Johnny Ringo. Him you never quit watching.

Stilwell, the first around, took it the best. "Morning, Sheriff. We was hoisting one to your memory."

"So I heard," said Wyatt. "Who tore it down?"

By now, they had all gotten up and around and had seen the wadded-up notice where it lay in the sawdust between Wyatt's spread feet. They had also had time to see the staged-off shotgun cradled in the hollow of his right arm. Billy Claiborne looked at his companions. He flushed, took a step forward.

"Me!" he snarled defiantly.

Wyatt hooked a big thumb over the double's hammers. The twin clicks bit into the stillness.

"Pick it up."

Wyatt dropped the shotgun's butt to his hip.

Claiborne figured the distance from its muzzle to his belt buckle. He bent over and picked up the paper.

Wyatt nodded. He put his left hand in his coat pocket, tossed a little dime-store hammer and a nickel bag of roofing nails onto the table. "March," he said.

Young Billy Claiborne picked up the hammer and the nails and marched.

"After you, gentlemen," said Wyatt to the rest of them. To Behan, Wyatt only nodded. "Don't ever touch the girl again," before turning and stalking off after them.

After making Billy Claiborne

Pigeon Causes Tally Turmoil in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE — A freed pigeon caused a lot of trouble in Milwaukee recently by getting itself entangled in a string on a utility cable high above the street.

Police Sgt. Harvey Daniels was the first to notice the pigeon, and he called the Humane Society immediately. But the society's ladder would not reach the high cable.

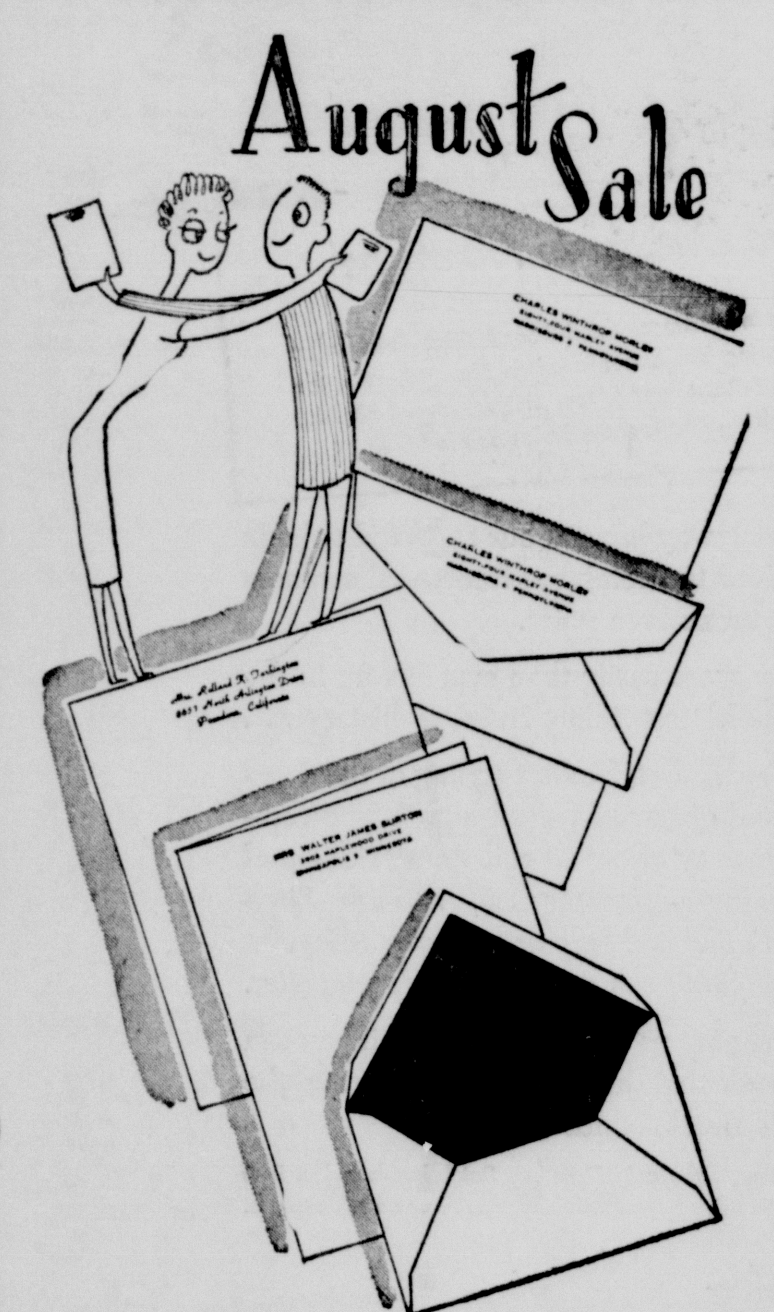

Firemen were called, and they raised a 30-foot ladder to reach the bird. Fireman Raymond Warda cut the string and brought the pigeon down to humane officer Edwin Thiel, who untangled the string, and let the bird go.

Stengel Gambles Rookie And Wins, Yanks Hike Lead; White Sox Bow to Solons

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

Casey Stengel's big gamble paid off — and so today the New York Yankees were rolling at an 813 pace which threatened to leave their three rival contenders in the American League race rolling in the dust.

Stengel gambled and won Thursday night when he tossed rookie pitcher Gary (Rip) Coleman against Early Wynn in the pre-season opener of a three-game series with the Indians. Coleman, recalled recently from Denver, was making only his second start in the majors but he out-pitched Wynn and received credit for the Yankees' 5-2 triumph.

As a result, the Yankees scored their 13th triumph in 16 games and dropped the second-place Chicago White Sox 1½ games off the pace. The third-place Indians fell two games behind and the fourth-place Boston Red Sox now are five full games out of first place.

Pace Tells On Rivals

Moreover, the Yankees' torrid pace of the last 18 days seems to be telling on all their rivals. During the same period the White Sox are 12-5, the Indians 11-5 and the Red Sox 6-7.

The White Sox suffered their third loss in five games with seventh and eighth-place teams Thursday when they bowed to Bob Porterfield and the Washington Senators, 6-1. The Red Sox, meanwhile, had to rebound from a 6-1 loss to gain a split with the Detroit Tigers in a 4-4 nightcap victory.

Coleman struck out four batters and yielded seven hits in 7 2/3 innings before Bob Grim came in to snuff out Cleveland's eighth-inning threat and breeze through the ninth. Joe Collins, who entered the game with a .221 average, sent the Yankees on the road to victory when he tagged Wynn for a two-run homer in the second inning to touch off a four-run outburst.

It was a bitter defeat for Wynn because it was Collins who on Aug. 2 tagged him for homers in the first and 10th innings of a game at Yankee Stadium to give the Yankees a 2-1 triumph. Wynn's record is 14-9 and he's failed three straight times to win the 19th game of his career.

Porterfield Does It Again
Porterfield, only Washington

pitcher to beat the White Sox this year, did it for the third time with a neat eight-hitter. Jose Valdivielso's three hits sparked a 13-blow attack that sent Connie Johnson to his second defeat. Lone consolation for the White Sox was that Minnie Minoso extended his hitting streak to 18 games — equalling the A. L.'s 1955 high.

Jackie Jensen became the first American Leaguer to drive in 100 runs this year when he hit a two-run homer and two-run double to lead the Red Sox's 10-hit attack in their nightcap. The Tigers, however, had routed Willard Nixon in the opener to win handily behind the eight-hit pitching of Ned Garver, who posted his 11th triumph.

Art Cecarelli pitched four-hit ball behind a 13-hit attack as the Kansas City Athletics routed the Baltimore Orioles, 8-2, in the other A. L. game. Vic Power had three hits for Kansas City.

Dodgers Lose Two

In the National League, the slumping first-place Brooklyn Dodgers lost their first double-header of the campaign when the Cincinnati Redlegs scored 8-5 and 6-5 triumphs. The Dodgers still lead by 11 games but have lost seven of their last 10 games and 11 of their last 17.

Wally Post hit his 32nd homer for Cincinnati in the opener and Gus Bell drove in three runs with three hits in the second game.

The Philadelphia Phillies ran their winning streak to six games and moved to within a half-game of third place with 11-9 and 8-3 wins over the St. Louis Cardinals. Robin Roberts staggered to his 21st victory in the first game while Saul Rogovin pitched a strong five-hitter in the nightcap.

Warren Spahn won his 13th game as the Milwaukee Braves beat the New York Giants, 3-2, and Elroy Face out-pitched Paul Minner to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-1 verdict over the Chicago Cubs in other N. L. games.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

Nashua to Fool Trainers If He Beats Swift Swaps

CHICAGO — (NEA) — Trainers and jockeys make Swift Swaps the favorite he is over Nashua in the big match race at Washington Park, Aug. 31.

You'd expect this in the West, where, as Eddie Arcaro pointed out, Swifts gave horsemen good reason to suspect that he is a super horse.

But it was the same story at Saratoga, even while Nashua was demonstrating that he was as fit as the skillful hands of the veteran Jim Fitzsimmons and a lot of others could make an outstanding performer.

Syl Veitch, mopping up at the Spa, was typical. Asked what he would do if he had Nashua against Swifts, the C. V. Whitney handler said: "I'd tell him and hope to wear him down. But he's the fastest horse and I don't believe Nashua will catch him."

The pattern of the mile-and-a-quarter race seems set. Willie Molter, who perhaps next to Rex Ellsworth and Meshach Tenney knows Swifts best, reveals what he thinks is a secret. Swifts beat little Determine, conditioned by Molter, and Mister Gus and other older horses in the most convincing of a half dozen impressive performances in the California at Hollywood Park, June 11.

MOLTER STRESSES THAT a free-running horse like Swifts has every advantage in a match race. "You throw a sizzling first quarter at your rival, get him hanging on behind you, ease off the pace when you need a breather, and save plenty to really turn it on in the last quarter," he stresses.

"You have to have a great horse like Swifts to run that kind of race, but this one is the sort which can do it."

"I don't believe Nashua can run with him in the first quarter. In the final analysis, that's going to be the answer."

ALLEN DRUMHELLER seconds the motion.

"I'd tell the rider to get out of the gate running and stay running any time Nashua makes a run at him," says the trainer, who was co-leader with Molter at the last Hollywood Park meeting. "I know Swifts can go a mile and a quarter on the lead. He did it in the Kentucky Derby with ease."

All of Nashua's good races save one have been run on sandy eastern tracks.

Nashua did considerably better than all right in the Classic at Arlington Park, however, and that strip is no different than the one at Washington Park.

And Mr. Fitz believes that Nashua has enough speed to keep Swifts busy in the early going.

"Swifts won't go to the front galloping," the 81-year-old trainer assures you.

U. S. Defends Net Davis Cup

Vic Seixas on Spot; He and Trabert To Carry Burden

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP)—U. S. champion Vic Seixas was the man on the spot today as he and Tony Trabert began defense of the Davis Cup against the same two foes they whipped to win the huge silver bowl in Australia last December.

Considered the weak link of America's two-man team, jittery Fitz drew the opening singles assignment against little Ken Rosewall, who has defeated Seixas seven of the last nine times they played.

It's Trabert against Lew Hoad of Australia in a duel of sluggers in the second match but, with Trabert near the peak of his game, U. S. Captain Billy Talbot had no worries about the chunky Wimbledon champion from Cincinnati.

"I still think we'll clinch it 3-0 on the first two days," said Talbot. He predicted a similar sweep last year and it came true.

One doubles match, often the key to Cup triumphs, will be played Saturday and, while the make-up of the teams hasn't been announced, it's almost certain Seixas and Trabert will be facing Hoad and Rex Hartwig on the Aussie side.

Then, on Sunday, come the final singles matches with today's pairings reversed—Trabert vs. Rosewall and Seixas vs. Hoad.

Soldier Giambra Meets Olson In Non-Title Bout

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Private Joey Giambra climaxes a 15-day furlough tonight by meeting world middleweight champion Carl (Bobo) Olson in a 10-round, non-title bout which may indicate whether the budding champion truly recovered from his June knockout by Archie Moore.

The fight will be nationally televised from the Cow Palace (8 p. m. CST) with a 150-mile local black-out.

Sullen Olson, who is prepping for a November title defense against Sugar Ray Robinson, has been posted a 3-1 favorite over the Buffalo, N. Y. soldier who now boxes out of Ft. Hood, Tex.

This is Bobo's second fight since he was flattened in the third round of his assault on Moore's light-heavyweight crown. He outpointed Jimmy Martinez in Portland, Ore. August 13 in the first of a combined "tuneup" and "comeback" series.

Sid Flaherty, Olson's manager, said he expects Giambra to be "troublesome for the first four or five rounds," then figures Olson will start getting to him.

Give Physicals to 94 Boys to Take Part in Sports

Ninety-four boys who expect to take part in competitive sports at the Harrisburg Township high school got their physical examinations yesterday morning at Davenport gymnasium.

The examinations were given to the entire group with local doctors and dentists co-operating. Most of the boys are candidates for the varsity and Bull Pup football teams. However, those who expect to go out for basketball, track, baseball and tennis also were given examinations.

Coch Lawrence Caluffetti is giving out football equipment at Davenport gym today and tomorrow.

Neighbor Towns Meet For Little League Title

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—Morrisville, Pa., and Delaware Township, N. J., practically neighbors, met for the Little League World Series title today after blasting their way into the finals with home runs.

The 1955 Little League competition began with 1,800 leagues throughout the nation. But as it neared a climax, the lone survivors were two Delaware River communities located only 20 miles from each other.

Dodger Tempers Frayed After Double Defeat

Duke Snider Blasts Fans, Manager Alston Gets Mad at Levity

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (AP)—Normally placid Walt Alston lost his patience today with some of his players for joking in the midst of a slump and Duke Snider angrily blasted Brooklyn fans in eruptions that emphasized the frayed tempers of the Dodgers.

It happened Thursday night after the Dodgers had been dumped twice by the Cincinnati Redlegs, 3-5 and 6-5, reducing their first place margin to 11 games.

Alston, stepping out of the show-up, walked into a group of his veteran players engaged in a laughing conversation with some sports writers.

"I wish to hell I could find something to laugh about," Alston snapped. "I can't see anything funny with what's been happening on this club."

His players sheepishly stopped the levity as Alston made his way to his office.

Snider, who had been booed lustily after falling on the outfield turf while chasing a hit in the first inning of the second game, blasted Brooklyn fans "as the worst in the league."

"I've said it ever since I came up to the majors," snapped the all-star outfielder whose batting average has dropped to .299. "They're the worst in the league. They don't deserve a pennant-winner. That's why the owners are talking about playing those games in Jersey City next season."

Alston still was steaming after he had dressed. Asked if he planned any lineup changes the following day, he replied grimly:

"Yes, I sure do. But I won't know exactly what changes I'll make until just before game-time."

★ EDSON IN WASHINGTON ★

Paywise, U. S. Labor Today
Is Better Off than in 1954

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—From a dollars-and-cents-in-the-pay-envelope point of view, Labor Day this year finds American workers in a much better position than a year ago. There are still numerous local gripes, but that's chronic. The recession of 1954 has largely receded.

Employment is up from a round number total of 62 million a year ago, to 65 million by the latest estimates available. Unemployment is down from 3.3 million to 2.4 million. Temporary layoffs are down from 300,000 to 160,000.

National average, nonagricultural wage rates are up from $1.80 to $1.88 an hour in the principal industries.

The cost of living has increased about one point in the past year. Food is down, but other things are up.

THE $1 AN HOUR minimum wage is now law.

The wave of strikes expected at the beginning of 1955, on the eve of many major contract reopenings, did not materialize.

A general pattern of wage and fringe benefits averaging around 15 cents an hour has emerged from the year's new contracts.

This was the average figure in the new basic steel industry contract. The range was from 11 1/2 cents for common labor to 27 cents for the highest skilled workers.

This grant of larger increases to the higher paid employees is a reversal of the World War II and postwar contracts. In that period raises were granted across the board, equal for all skills.

THE CHANGE IS a reflection of the increased demand for skilled workers. It may be a sign of the increasing trend toward automation.

But the fear that this technological improvement in production methods would throw many workers out of their jobs has temporarily, at least, been dispelled by the expanding economy. Total employment for key industries like General Motors, U. S. Steel and General Electric is running at record peacetime highs. Machines may be replacing men on some production lines. But more jobs are opening up.

THE BASIC STEEL average increase of 15 cents an hour has been followed in aluminum (15 cents), nonferrous metals (15 1/2 cents) and Armour and Swift (14 cents), first contracts to be signed in the meat packing industry.

Without even the threat of a strike, John L. Lewis won for the United Mine Workers 15 cents an hour more on Sept. 1, plus another 10 cents next April 1. This is the record straight hourly wage gain of the year.

The United Auto Workers' package deal with Ford and General Motors is estimated at total wage and fringe increases equal to 20 cents an hour.

The big new idea in both auto and steel contracts is a company contribution to an unemployment benefit fund. Payments from this fund, to supplement state unemployment insurance benefits, cannot begin till next year.

The hurdle of getting state legal authority for these supplementary unemployment benefits still has to be cleared. Michigan and Connecticut were the first to approve them.

LABOR UNION DRIVES are on in 22 states to have laws amended which now ban state job insurance payments to unemployed workers receiving other income. Southern states, in general, are planning no such action.

First supplementary unemployment benefit contracts are regarded as organized labor's foot in the door for later "guaranteed annual wage" or GAW demands.

In the Steel Workers' American Can Co. contract, supplementary benefits will be paid for a full year's unemployment. But it is pointed out that employment in the can industry is much more stable than in autos or basic steel. So payments under the American Can contract may never be as high as in autos, where there are model change layoffs.
